

RightCourse Privacy Statement

This online privacy statement provides an overview of the RightCourse privacy and data protection policy and practices. We believe in protecting your personal information and sharing with you openly how data is collected and used. If you have questions about our policies, please contact us.

The RightCourse website collects information you provide directly to us, such as the completion of our inquiry form. This data might include names, email addresses, phone numbers and other information you are willing to share with us about your management consulting needs. We do not collect any personal data unless you choose to provide it to RightCourse.

RightCourse will only use personal data with your consent and for the purpose that was specified when the data was collected. This data may be kept on file for future reference, and it may be shared with RightCourse's partners.

RightCourse also collects data using our website technology to measure traffic, page views and the internet address of visitors. The collection of this data is only used for internal marketing metrics and to help us troubleshoot technical issues that may occur such as internet attacks. RightCourse does not warrant the security of data transmissions over the Internet. Please note that information transferred across the Internet has the potential to be accessed during transmission by unauthorized parties.

RightCourse uses industry best practices, including business process precautions and technology to protect personal data from misuse or loss.